WHEN HUGGED TIGHTLY,

MEN do not catch cold easily. We mean hugged around the ankles by our choice for the rubber in their tops does not like that in some makes of similar goods, soon lose its elasticity and hang away from the ankle in unsightly folds, thus giving entrance to cold air and snow with their accompanying cold. Not a bit of it! Their tight hugging powers on the contrary stay till the day they are relegated to the dump or the tramp, as the case may be.

Calf Congress Boots,

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

A novel idea has been put into practice by a Lewiston artist, and one that suggests still another line of usefulness for our Maine forests. Albums of our beautiful colored autumn leaves, all made from colored cardboard, with covers of colored or tinted bristol-board, tied with ribbons, and embellished with gilt, crimson and other inks. These make most beautiful "Souvenirs of the Maine forest," which at first were prepared only for gifts to friends in the west, but having once reached the Pacific coast, are now sought for, at almost any cost, by many whose early homes were among the rugged hills of New England.

Cumberland.

Gordon C. Merrill, a three-years old child of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Merrill, of Portland, died Saturday from injuries received by falling into a tub of hot water.

Last Wednesday, Spencer Decker, one of the most prominent citizens of Webb's Mill, had his leg amputated at the knee and doctors state that Mr. Decker's chances for recovery are about even.

Mrs. Mary A. True, widow of Nathan O. True, of Freeport, died suddenly Saturday morning from apoplexy, aged sixty-eight years. Her husband died last Sunday, and was buried Wednesday. She was then in good health.

On receipt, in Portland, of a dispatch from B. Haskell & Sons, ship chandlers of Gloucester, Mass., Marshal Hawkes, Saturday, detained the schooner Water Lily, Capt. Charles F. Willey. Messrs. Haskell charge the captain and crew with having sold sail and rigging belonging to the schooner, and with the intent of selling the vessel. Captain and crew were held by the marshal. A Commercial street firm that had just supplied the schooner with a quantity of provisions, replevined the goods. Mr. Haskell, owner of the vessel, arrived from Gloucester by the Boston boat, Sunday morning, and the matter was arranged between him, Capt. Willey and the crew, and they were discharged from custody. The vessel will go back to Gloucester.

Kennebec.

Mr. C. A. Brick, the able assistant at the Cony High School, Augusta, has been obliged to resign his position on account of failing health. Mr. Brick has since last fall been instructor in the natural sciences and arithmetic, and during his brief stay has done excellent work. Mr. Horace True, a graduate of the Cony High School and of Bowdoin College, and who has had much experience as a teacher, has been engaged to fill his place.

The saw mill belonging to John K. Damren, at North Belgrade, was burned Saturday morning. The fire is supposed to have started from sparks from a fireplace in the basement, as workmen were at work in the mill late on the evening before. The mill was not of as much value as the machinery, which was in it. There was no insurance upon the property, and as Mr. Damren is a man of moderate circumstances, the loss is a severe blow to him and his business. Loss, $1,500.

Oxford.

The youngest son of Edward Jacques, who recently moved to Oxford from Canada, fell on an upturned dog on the runner of a sled. The iron dog penetrated his body and the boy died at half past four o'clock Sunday morning.

Sagadahoc.

[illegible] request of the wood workers, the [illegible] or of Bath has addressed the carpenters in their hall on the present labor [illegible]bles. His advice was that a mutual [agre]ement be drawn up under which all [illegible] re-ume work, and the company [give] Bath men the preference in employ[ment]. Neither side seems disposed to [agre]e to it. Meanwhile the men continue [to le]ave town. Fifteen carpenters left for [illegible], Monday morning, and an equal [num]ber followed this afternoon. There [is] good prospect of the trouble being [brou]ght to an end, before the close of this [week].

Washington.

[The] following figures represent the [amo]unt of lumber that has been sawed on St. Croix river during the year 1888: [Mess]rs. H. F. Eaton & Sons, 20,000,000 of [long] lumber, 9,000,000 shingles, 8,000,000 [laths]. They employ 169 men, and keep [three] mills running by day and two by [night]. F. F. Todd & Sons manufacture [8,0]00,000 long lumber, 9,250,000 laths, 1,-[6]00 shingles. They employ 70 men [and] keep three mills going. James [Mur]chie & Sons sawed 9,000,000 long lumber, 7,000,000 laths and 4,000,000 shingles. [The]y employ 100 men and keep three mills [go]ing. Gates & Wentworth sawed 11,-[0]00 long lumber, 0,000,000 laths and [2,]000 shingles. They employ 100 [men] and run three mills, making a total [agg]regate of 18,000,000 long lumber, 30,-[0]00 laths and 22,200,000 shingles and [illegible] men employed.

York.

Will Haskell, of Saco, was leading a [bull] Thursday, the animal got loose and [toss]ed Haskell ten feet and before he could [escap]e a second attack Haskell got over a [fence]. It took six men with pitchforks to [drive] the animal to the barn.

[Fr]ank Irish, of Saco, received a communi[cation] from Nevada City, California, stat[ing] that his brother, Charles Irish of that [place], had died in January. He had fallen [from] a tree in his orchard, causing a rup[ture] of a blood vessel. Mr. Irish former[ly li]ved in Saco and was an overseer in the [Yor]k mills. He leaves a son and two [dau]ghters.

NEWS FROM EASTERN MAINE.

Casino Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

There was a union temperance meeting at the Unitarian Church on Sunday eve, February 10th, under the auspices of the Juvenile Temple. The union temperance meetings have been well attended this winter and resulted in much good.

Mrs. J. F. Locke and Mrs. B. D. Perkins entertained the Unitarian Sewing Circle at the parsonage on Wednesday. There were about seventy at supper.

The ladies of the Methodist Sewing Circle held their sale and supper at their Vestry on Thursday. There was a large attendance, and the proceeds were satisfactory to the ladies of the society.

Aaron Chamberlain and Frank Hooper have been putting in their ice the last week; also John M. Vogell has been filling the ice house at the Acadian. The ice is about fifteen inches thick and good quality.

John M. Vogell is having four boats built at Camden. Fred Perkins is also building one for him. They will be about thirteen feet long.

Steamer Electa is doing good business this winter between here and Belfast.

Revenue cutter Woodbury came in Friday night and left Saturday morning, cruising. The Dallas, Capt. Parker, went to Belfast last week and broke out several vessels that were in the ice. The Belfast people say that he cleared all the ice from the harbor. Capt. Parker never half does anything, but finishes any job he commences.

Dr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Wheeler entertained a few friends at their residence on Saturday evening, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. We understand that the doctor was not aware of having any company that evening and took his beloved pipe to have a smoke when he found that he had many callers, therefore was like the man that was struck by lightning—when asked how the lightning came to strike him replied that it took him unawares.

The Christian Endeavor met at Mrs. Robinson's on Friday evening.

St. Albans Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

The three days fair at Town Hall held under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans was a success. They were well patronized by the citizens of this and adjoining towns and took nearly $75 to replenish their treasury, a part of which will go to buy a flag. The lucky guessers on the beans, ring-cake and string bottle secured a gold ring, lamp, and a glass set of dishes, and the unlucky ones are out of pocket five cents.

The members of Geo. Goodwin Post are hauling lumber to the mill to build a cottage at Camp Benson on the west shore of Sebasticook Lake, Newport. Several very pretty cottages were built there last summer and it is intended to build more during the present year.

Daniel Frost, wife and daughter Mabel, from Lewiston, are here on a visit to his father-in-law, Mr. Isaac Osborn. Mr. Osborn's daughter Katie is quite low with consumption.

Mrs. Freeman Trafton and two daughters have returned from a visit to Skowhegan for the last two weeks.

Miss Lydia E. Ireland who has filled the office of post mistress and assistant for the last twenty-five years has resigned the position and H. C. Prescott has been appointed and has entered upon the duties of the office.

[illegible]

West Levant Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Though some of our townsmen have been disappointed in their winter's work, on account of the scarcity of snow, and business has been dull, causing some to murmur, yet they have great reason to be grateful to "Him who bestows all blessings," for the good degree of health that has been so universally enjoyed during the winter; very few, if any, cases of severe sickness have been known among the people of this vicinity. A few elderly people have been somewhat indisposed, but at present are very comfortable. The favor seems to be duly appreciated, for the people, both old and young, are entering, with manifestations of unusual life and energy, into the good work of reducing the church debt which, with good success, will very soon be among the things that were.

The spring term of High school, under the instruction of Mr. W. S. Townsend, of Stetson, will commence at the lower village, Monday. Several of our young people will attend; an interesting term is anticipated. Mr. Townsend is a first-class teacher in every respect; his mind is well-stored with useful knowledge, and he withholds no efforts in imparting it to his pupils; he finds no idle moments in the schoolroom, but faithfully performs every duty with a zeal which his pupils duly appreciate.

About fifty young people assembled at the hall, Thursday evening, for an old-fashioned "candy pull." Music, fun and a "sweet" time were enjoyed.

Mr. Charles Robinson, Corinth's well-known music teacher, closed his school here, Friday night; the term has been both interesting and profitable.

Frank Carter is spending a few weeks in Corinth, engaged in breaking colts; his love for horses, and his peculiarly gentle manner of managing them, makes him a very successful horse tamer.

Mrs. William Wright and Mrs. C. C. Cloudman, are visiting friends in Boston and vicinity.

East Corinth Letter.

[Correspondence of the Whig and Courier.]

The Corinth Advance, as its name implies, has advanced from a monthly to a semi-monthly, and the proprietors, C. Megquire & Son, are in hopes soon to issue a weekly. Several new features have been added to this already newsy and interesting little sheet.

George S. Hill, father of G. F. Hill, died last Friday. He had been in a very feeble state of health for some time back. The remains were taken to Bradford, and the funeral was conducted by Rev. Mr. Page, of that place; and the body buried there beside the wife of the deceased.

A pleasant occasion was a sociable given by the ladies of the M. E. Society, of this place, at the residence of Mr. Charles Silman, on Wednesday evening, 19th inst., and a goodly number attended, and partook of an excellent supper, which was followed by a general good time. It was a success both from a social and monetary point of view.

Mr. Bacon had, in our village, last Saturday, one of the finest specimens of horse-flesh it has ever been our privilege to see. We venture to assert that a better built horse is seldom seen.

We need a hearse, the worst kind, to supercede the seedy-looking affair now used in that capacity. There is talk of getting a new one. A vote will be taken at the next town meeting.

Miss Carrie Eddy, one of Corinth's best school teachers, has just completed a successful term of school in the Eddy District, so called.

Miss Belle Elden has just returned home from West Corinth, where she has completed a successful term of school. Miss Elden also taught the summer term of this school.

Miss Mamie Katen finished her winter term of school in Stetson, one week ago last Friday; returned to Corinth, Monday following.

Our Village school, District Number 4, closed last Friday, and the scholars did credit to themselves. Miss Linnie Ames has proved herself an efficient and pleasing teacher, and has won the best will of all her scholars.

Mr. Ivory Tozier is improving.

The prospect is brightening for East Corinth Academy, and the spring term, which commences next Monday, will undoubtedly be a very full one.

F. H. Drummond is the clerk for E. H. Hunting, at his hotel on Roach River, and that means an increase of summer visitors during that warm season.

The photographers from Glenburn have been in town only three weeks, instead of ten as reported in last week's paper.

Mr. Samuel Katen is serving as foreman of the first Jury in Bangor, at present. A better man for the position could not have been chosen.

Where is that hook and ladder company for this place?

Kingman Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Mr. Simon Gates, the popular proprietor of Katahdin House, Winn, was in town last Monday, being on his way from Carroll, where he had been visiting friends.

Tom Madden, of Wytopitlock, has sent Bill Clancey, of Orono, a challenge to meet him in the ring at St. John, with hard gloves, on any date, and stake to be agreed on, including the championship of the State. There has long existed a controversy between them as to which was possessor of this title and the present contest will no doubt decide it.

Some of the young men in town are agitating the organization of a brass band. This would be something of much credit and benefit to the citizens, and if the prospect of success is good the movement should receive encouragement.

Our Macwahoc friends are to have a grand gift entertainment and ball the 4th of March. The prizes are quite numerous and valuable.

THE OUTER WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY

"This in despite of the absence of years"
How sweet the remembrances of home
Still appears?
From allurements abroad which but flatter the eye,
The unsatisfied heart turns, and says with a sigh—
Home, home, sweet, sweet home?
There's no place like home,
There's no place like home.

But the eye grows tired in looking at the manifold and ever-varying beauties of nature, and gladly turns to the quiet and not less beautiful Home-life for rest and comfort.

"Be it ever so Humble, There's no Place like Home."

Cleanse the System

DO IT NOW

With that most reliable medicine—Paine's Celery Compound. It purifies the blood, cures Constipation, and regulates the liver and kidneys, effectually cleansing the system of all waste and dead matters.

Paine's Celery Compound

combines true nerve tonic and strengthening qualities, reviving the energies and spirits.

"I have been troubled for some years with a complication of difficulties. After trying various remedies, and not finding relief, I tried Paine's Celery Compound. Before taking one full bottle the long troublesome symptoms began to subside, and I can truly say now, that I feel like a new man. Digestion has improved, and I have gained ten pounds in weight since I have commenced taking the Compound."

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." George A. Whig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. BOUTELLE, EDITOR.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed: "Editor of Whig and Courier."

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1889.

Referring to the vote in the House on the secret ballot bill the Piscataquis Observer says: "The members of the House evidently did not think that existing conditions in the State called for the introduction of any such system. And we believe the members took the right view of it."

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, is quoted as saying to a brother Senator, in commenting on the Clayton tragedy: "We intend to continue to carry elections at the South by what you in the North call fraud; but if we cannot carry them in the present manner, we shall carry them in any method necessary, no matter what the cost."

If the Democratic mischief-makers who are naming Cabinets for Harrison and then asserting that Republicans are much dissatisfied thereby, would spend a quarter of the ingenuity they waste in efforts to deharmonize the Republican party in efforts to harmonize their own, they might carry it closer to success when elections come round.

The Boston Post is not pleased with the make-up of Gen. Harrison's Cabinet as the guessers have constructed it. We do not imagine that Gen. Harrison will be much disturbed at the comments of a paper whose idea of statesmanship in a Cabinet is exemplified in Bayard, Vilas, Dickinson and Garland. It should occur to the Post that had the people wanted another Cleveland Cabinet, therefore a Boston Post Cabinet, they had the decision in their own hands. Having been invited to step down and out it would be in better taste if the Post, as the organ of the rejected Administration, should exercise a little more modesty instead of obtruding its opinion as though it were a matter of some moment at this time.

Judge Edgerton, the Civil Service Commissioner who was removed by President Cleveland, has taken his revenge by writing an insolent "open letter" to the President. The letter is its own evidence that the writer ought to have been removed.—Boston Globe.

The apologists for the Administration will never forgive Judge Edgerton for telling the President more truth than he has heard from the whole party during his occupancy of the White House. Judge Edgerton's unfitness for a position on the Civil Service Commission admits of no doubt, but the more severe the attacks upon him in the Administration organs the greater is the reflection upon the sincerity of the President for retaining him upon the board until almost the last minute when he is kicked out not in the interest of reform but to make a place for a Cleveland Democrat.

Most people, too, would like to know something more about Mr. Noble, of Missouri, who is to have the tremendous power and patronage of the Interior Department.—New York Evening Post.

We only have it as one of the guesses that Mr. Noble is going into the Cabinet, but it is amusing to find the editor of the Post asking for information that is furnished by its Washington correspondent in the same edition of the paper. Senator Vest in an interview with the Post reporter, says: "Gen. Noble was promoted to be a Brigadier General in the war. He settled in St. Louis just after the war and has been a lawyer of very high reputation and large practice ever since. He is a very decided Republican. You may say unhesitatingly that he will adorn President Harrison's Cabinet in any position." This seems to answer the question of the editor who is doubtless so unaccustomed to find any information in the columns of his paper that it did not occur to him to look there for it on this occasion.

Referring to the California contested election case a Washington despatch says: Sullivan, the Democratic contestant, seems to base his claim to the seat mainly on the fact that Felton's plurality was small, being only 719. That the case is not a strong one is indicated by the fact that, claim as the Democratic majority in the House, the matter has not been pressed until the closing days of Congress. Of course, it would be a good thing for Sullivan if he could obtain the seat now and draw some $12,000 on account of salary, mileage and other allowances, for ten days' service. The Republicans were not ready to consider the case and insisted that the Democrats should find a quorum of their own members to take it up. Chairman Crisp referred to the Republican anxiety which forced the consideration of the Smalls-Elliott case last week and accused the Republicans of inconsistency. Mr. Reed retorted: "Well, before the Smalls-Elliott case was taken up we had some confidence in the justice and impartiality of the tribunal to which we appealed, but the result of that case shows that our confidence is misplaced, and we are in no haste to go before that tribunal again."

The Portland Argus breaks forth in a column article upon the ballot reform bill in which it takes occasion to make a singular attack upon the Republicans for the fate of the measure in the House. Here is a sample of its latest effort:

These are the very old political hacks against whose tricks the public complain. They are the thing itself, to be reformed. As well might the geese go with a petition to the foxes to get them to agree to give a loud signal yelp fifteen minutes before they break into the goose yard. As well might the hens get the aid of the skunks to throw some new safeguards around the chicken coops. It must have been very amusing to listen to the debate. It must have been as good as a play to see these hardened old political workers draw on long faces, and try to find some plausible excuses for condemning a measure, without disclosing the real one, namely, that wild horses could not draw them away from a settled purpose never to give up one single advantage, honest or dishonest, by which they held and perpetuated their control of this State. It was a marvelous exercise of ingenuity.

It would be "good as a play" to watch those old war-horses of Democracy, Messrs. Dicky and Talbot, as well as that younger aspirant for Democratic honors, Madigan, of Houlton, all of whom voted against the bill, when they read in the Argus that they have been aiding the Republicans to perpetuate their control of the State. Of course the Argus knew it was talking nonsense when it published the above because it knows that these representative Democrats are not in the least anxious to perpetuate Republican control in this State, but it relied upon the short memory of its readers to overlook the fact that two of the best known Democrats in the State give the lie direct to its words. If our Portland contemporary wants to give its readers something "very amusing" we suggest the republication of its editorial coupled with the names of the Democrats who voted against the bill.

In Pulaski as well as Conway county, Arkansas, at the election last autumn, says the Boston Traveller, the Democrats secured a majority for their Congressional candidate, Mr. Clifton R. Breckinridge, and for four members of the Legislature from Pulaski county by the simple but effective means of stealing poll books and returns. In Pulaski county in order to give the Democratic legislative candidates a majority it was necessary to steal them from nine townships. The Republican candidates began a contest. The assassination of John M. Clayton has served to direct public attention to this Arkansas method of carrying elections, and the situation had become an embarrassing one for these Democratic members. It was understood that the Committee on Elections would report in favor of the contestants. Such a report was likely to cause discussion and attract attention more than ever to Democratic election tactics. It was recognized that this would be specially embarrassing just at the present time. So with great show of virtue the four Democrats resigned their seats and allowed the Republican contestants to be seated. Inconvenient discussion was avoided. There is such a thing as being virtuous from sheer necessity.

The Republican League.

PREPARING FOR THE CONVENTION IN BALTIMORE.

Secretary Andrew B. Humphrey, of the National League of Republican Clubs has arrived in Baltimore to confer with the Baltimore committee in arranging for the convention of clubs to begin there on February 28. He was received at the Young Men's Republican Club by President Johnson, General Adam E. King and other prominent members of the club. The arrangements for the convention are nearly completed. The big hall of Concordia Opera House will be used for the banquet and mass meeting. The sessions of the League will likely be held in Ford's Opera House, which is only five minutes walk from the Concordia. Mr. Humphrey expressed his pleasure at the admirable facilities afforded for the convention and the general interest manifested by the citizens. He said:

"The coming convention will mark the permanent establishment of a new era, a new feature of National political campaigns. It denotes the culmination of determined organization and intelligent progress, and in the future the political club will be an important factor in campaigns. The growth of the movement has been rapid, and its history full of interest. To the convention which will assemble here next week thirty States will send 300 delegates and alternates representing 10,000 active clubs, and over 1,000,000 voters. It will be the greatest representative convention ever held in America, for no other organization has over 1,000,000 names upon its roll. The delegates, as a rule, are young men, who represent the younger element of the party, to whose activity is largely due the success of the Republican ticket last fall. They are engaged in the movement purely from patriotic motives, and are not actuated by a hunger and thirst for spoils. They are men who are not prominent in the party, yet they are the most effective workers.

"The convention will be organized by President Foster and myself, and will then take matters in its own hand. Its work will be largely devoted to reviewing the work of the last year, hearing the reports of State Leagues, and outlining a general plan of action to be followed by different leagues. Matters will come up regarding the Republican party organization that will be of National importance. Last year the work of the clubs was marked by a sort of general scramble, but it is proposed to adopt a thorough system looking to permanency. It is intended to make the club a permanent and prominent feature in Republican politics, and to promote the social feature in order to hold the clubs together in off years. Thus stronger clubs will be urged to look after the weaker ones. The Young Men's Republican Club of this city has taken the initiative in the movement by purchasing for itself a permanent and attractive home. The Republican majority in the next Congress is due almost entirely to the work of these clubs. The largely increased Republican vote in many States is due to the same cause. In Missouri, for instance, where previous to last year a club was almost unknown, 600 clubs were formed and we elected two Congressmen and largely increased our vote. The reduction of the Democratic majority in Maryland is also traceable to this source. The result in West Virginia, where 250 clubs were formed, is an example of the effect of this movement. One club there was formed exclusively of ex-Confederates. In New York we called that a full page illustration of the new South."

Chauncey M. Depew will, it is understood, make one of the principal speeches at the banquet, which will be the biggest Republican feast ever spread in the United States.

The Patapsco Republican Club of Baltimore, has just taken possession of a new club house in Columbia avenue. This new home is magnificently furnished and the club now numbers nearly 600 members. The growth of the Republican clubs in that city and State is remarkable. The Young Men's Club, of Baltimore, which is the largest of them all, will soon have the handsomest club house in the city. The Democratic clubs of Baltimore can no longer boast of the beauty of their quarters or the extent of their membership.

THE WONDERFUL CARLSBAD SPRINGS.

At the Ninth International Medical Congress, Dr. A. L. A. Toboldt, of the University of Pennsylvania, read a paper stating that out of thirty cases treated with the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt, Powder form, for Chronic constipation, hypochondria, disease of the liver and kidneys, jaundice, adiposis, diabetes, dropsy from valvular heart disease, dyspepsia, catarrh, inflammation of the stomach, ulcer of the stomach or spleen, children with marasmus, gout, rheumatism of the joints, gravel, etc., twenty-six were entirely cured, three much improved, and one not treated long enough. Average time of treatment, four weeks. The Carlsbad Sprudel Salt (powder form) is an excellent Aperient, Laxative and Diuretic. It clears the complexion, purifies the blood. It is easily soluble, pleasant to take and permanent in action. The genuine product of the Carlsbad Springs is exported in round bottles. Each bottle comes in a light blue paper cartoon, and has the signature "Eisner & Mendelson Co." sole agents, 6 Barclay Street, New York, on every bottle. One bottle mailed for One Dollar. Dr. Toboldt's lectures mailed free upon application.

About Life Insurance.

Life insurance has grown in favor as its peculiar advantages have become better understood. Within the recollection of our oldest readers it was regarded as sacrilege for one to insure his life. An eminent clergyman once expressed it as "a distrust of Divine Providence." Happily for the interests of the people that superstition no longer exists. Life insurance is advocated and practised by the clergy, the financier, the business man, the farmer, and the laborer, in fact by all classes of society. The question is not now, "Was the deceased insured?" Yes, in the Notice of Petition for Discharge.

PENOBSCOT ss. Court of Insolvency.

In the case of James W. Spencer, Insolvent debtor.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has, on the eighteenth day of February, A. D. 1889, been presented to said Court for said County by James W. Spencer of Springfield, in the County of Penobscot, praying that he may be decreed to have a discharge from all his debts, provable under Chapter seventy of the Revised Statutes of the State of Maine, and the amendments thereof, and upon said Petition, it is ordered by said Court that a hearing be had upon the same, before said Court, at Probate Court Room in Bangor, in said County of Penobscot, on Wednesday, the thirteenth day of March, A. D. 1889, at ten o'clock in the forenoon; and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier, a newspaper published in said County of Penobscot, once a week for two successive weeks, the last publication to be seven days at least before the day of hearing; and that all creditors who have proved their debts, and other persons interested, may appear at said place and time, and show cause, if any they have, why a discharge should not be granted said Debtor according to the prayer of his petition.

Attest: AMBROSE C. FLINT, Register of said Court for said County of Penobscot.

[illegible] to be the safest, most potent and [illegible] remedy known for this child-killing [illegible]. As a cathartic vermifuge it has no equal. It expels all kinds of worms, and in fact all living creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity, are triumphantly expelled by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes in from all sections where it is known. It not only effectually removes from the system those troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have been weak and puny for years, are at once improved and restored to health by its use. Being a mild and gentle laxative, it is a corrective of the greatest value. It is purely vegetable and cannot be beat. It has also expelled several lizards. One eight inches in length, is spotted, belongs to the water species and looks like a veritable young alligator. Fits caused by worms and indigestion.

FROM THE STATE CAPITOL.

The State Prison Labor Bill Postponed Indefinitely.

Oats to Remain at Thirty-Two Pounds to a Bushel.

The Resolve for Refunding the Debt Passed to be Engrossed.

The City of Brewer Bill Passes the House.

The Woman's Reformatory Bill Defeated.

The Woman's Suffrage Bill and Reports Assigned for Next Wednesday.

[To the Whig and Courier]

Senate

Augusta, Feb 20 Not a particularly [illegible] Senate but considerable [illegible] was engendered over the bill to [illegible] the 20 per cent clause in the [illegible] pertaining to labor in the State Prison and [illegible] providing that [illegible] should be held twice each year for the sale of such goods as are manufactured in the carriage and harness shops. It did not seem to have any end.

[illegible] thought the law had not [illegible] and that the prison officials [illegible] tried to make the law as effective as it might be made.

The bill was finally postponed by a vote [illegible].

[illegible] for regulating the weight [illegible] bushel of oats by making it 30 pounds [illegible] from the table and dealt a silent [illegible] blow in the form of indefinite postponement. This measure will probably [illegible] between the porch [illegible] the Committee of Con[illegible] at its [illegible].

The resolve providing for the refunding of [illegible] was taken from the table [illegible] suspension of the rules [illegible] passed to be engrossed.

A bill [illegible] empowering [illegible] to [illegible] as well as [illegible].

House

The [illegible] the present on the [illegible] galleries of the House [illegible] The audience was composed chiefly of ladies who were interested in the [illegible] the proposed reform [illegible] institution for women and the reports on the woman suffrage bill. What with the [illegible] of the fair sex and the [illegible] already in place it is [illegible] members were able to get through [illegible] amount of business [illegible].

That [illegible] the greater part of the [illegible] the bill proposing an appropriation of $30 000 to establish a reformatory institution for women.

Representative Barker of Bangor opened [illegible] with an eloquent speech in favor of the measure. Mr Barker spoke twenty minutes and held the closest attention of [illegible] up to the time that the last word [illegible] spoken. It was the ablest effort that Mr Barker has made this session.

Among those who followed him were [illegible] Representative Looney [illegible] and Major Dickey, while [illegible] who ranged themselves on the opposite side were Messrs Talbot of East [illegible] Milligan, of Houlton and Chadbourne of Biddeford.

The arguments on both sides were well [illegible] and protracted to such an extent that the House did not adjourn till after 1 [illegible]. Before the vote was cast there [illegible] rumor started in the assembly that [illegible] was an attempt by the Augusta people to get through this appropriation and [illegible] doing prevent an appropriation being made for a new capitol building. How much effect this talk may have had the measure was defeated 80 to 53. Immediately after the declaration of the vote the Portland enthusiasts claimed that [illegible] really a test of the Chamber [illegible] capitol moving question. It would be [illegible] however to make due allowance for their enthusiasm.

The following order was presented [illegible] that the trustees of the Reform School be instructed to afford ample facilities for freedom of religious worship by [illegible] ministers of any denomination [illegible] the parents of the children being to administer the sacraments and [illegible] spiritual comfort without let or hindrance [illegible] order that the Legislature finally [illegible] it has completed its business.

Mr Wakefield presented bill an act to incorporate the North Eastern Trust Company. Among the names of those interested are Arthur Sewall Thomas W Hyde Weston Lewis William G Davis, [illegible] Tyson Tucker and others.

Mr [illegible] presented a bill for the examination of insurance companies. It [illegible] section 65 of Chapter 43 of R S, so that [illegible] shall read "He shall annually examine every domestic stock insurance company and biennially every domestic mutual fire insurance company, etc."

Mr Leaks introduced an act to authorize the Dexter & Piscataquis Railroad Co to construct its railroad.

The bill to incorporate the city of Brewer was rushed through to-day under a suspension of the rules. The old bill had been referred to the Selectmen of Brewer and they found so many errors in connection with it that Mr Barker introduced an amendment which is practically a new bill, as it takes the place of all in the old bill after the enacting clause.

The majority and minority reports on the Woman Suffrage bill were brought in from the committee and the bill was assigned to next Wednesday for discussion.

The resolve in favor of Hollis B Lawrence of Bangor, was passed to be engrossed.

Notes.

Messenger Stevens returned to-day, having recovered from the dangerous bleeding attack which so nearly proved fatal some weeks ago.

The decorations in the State House are going up and as the work nears completion a quite good idea of the fine effect of the whole when completed can be obtained. A creditable description would be impossible, but it is safe to say that the old State House never donned such gala dress before.

FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capitol.

Can Pass No Law Against Gambling in Futures

WASHINGTON Feb 20 During last session of Congress bills were introduced in the House to punish dealing in futures in agricultural produce and to prohibit fictitious and gambling transactions on the price of articles produced by American farm industry. The bills were referred to the Committee on Agriculture. To day the committee again took up the matter and decided to report both bills adversely and authorized the appointment of a subcommittee to draw up a report to that effect. The committee investigated the matter thoroughly and arrived at the conclusion that Congress has no jurisdiction over this subject, that the limitations imposed by the Constitution make it improper for Congress to pass the measures proposed and that it is a matter for State legislation exclusively.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Conference Report on the Territorial Admission Bill Adopted in Both Houses.

The House Adopts the Conference Report on the Direct Tax Bill.

The Bill Gone to the President.

Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb 20 Mr Stewart offered a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses, continuing the select committee on Pacific Railroads until the indebtedness of all companies is adjusted and instructing the committee to examine personally during recess the roads and the country through which they pass and the abilities of the companies to pay the indebtedness.

Mr Call introduced a concurrent resolution for the appointment of a commissioner from each State by the Governor and commissioned by the President to represent the United States at the Paris exhibition in 1889, to be paid actual travelling expenses and $5 a day for sixty days.

A number of amendments from the Committee on Appropriations were agreed to.

The Senate took up the committee's amendment as to printing Government work by steam printing machines at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The amendment allows a royalty for machines of fifty cents per thousand impressions, strikes out the proviso on that subject and substitutes for it: "Unless the patentees of said steam presses shall accept the rate for 1,000 sheets herein provided said presses shall not be used by the Government after the close of the present fiscal year and provided there shall not be an increase of the number of steam plate printing machines of the character now employed in the engraving and printing bureau."

The discussion over the question of steam versus hand presses was interrupted by the presentation by Mr Platt of the Conference report on the bill for the admission of South Dakota as a State and the organization of the territory of North Dakota.

A message from the House announcing the signing by the Speaker of the Direct Tax bill was laid before the Senate and the bill, first signed by the presiding officer was immediately sent to the President and the consideration of the conference report was resumed.

Mr Hoar had addressed to the Senate conferees a communication signed by twenty-two Senators asking to have the rights of women in Washington Territory recognized in the bill and he asked Mr Platt to state the result arrived at in conference.

Mr Platt said that the rule adopted was that all persons qualified by the laws of each Territory to vote for representatives to the Territorial Legislatures should be qualified to vote for delegates to the constitutional conventions. The decision of the Supreme Court of Washington against the right of women to vote had been appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States. The Senate conferees had pressed the matter on the House conferees and the latter would not consent. The Senate conferees had not thought it worth while to carry persistence so far as to endanger the bill.

Mr West inquired why the proposition to admit New Mexico had been eliminated from the bill.

Mr Cullom declined to go into a discussion of the merits of the question. A large portion of the people of New Mexico were termed Mexicans in contradistinction to Americans. Not over 15,000 or 20,000 could speak the English language. He did not approve of the provision for the admission of these States on the President's proclamation.

Mr Vest expressed his conviction that the reason for the exclusion of New Mexico was that the Republican party was afraid to risk the vote there.

Mr Cullom disclaimed being influenced by considerations of the political status of the people of New Mexico.

Mr Vest said he was not afraid or ashamed to say he would not consent to give what he believed to be an unjust and inequitable advantage to the Republican party.

Mr Morgan argued that the exclusion of New Mexico was in violation of the treaty of Guadaloupe Hidalgo.

Mr Brown said the bill was an omnibus bill to admit four Republican States, exclusive of New Mexico, for political consideration. The report was agreed to without division.

A message from the President transmitting the report of the Secretary of State, with accompanying correspondence, touching the case of Lord Sackville, was presented, read and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The Senate adjourned at 3 30.

House

The contest over the direct tax bill was resumed. Mr Caswell called up the conference report as a matter of privilege and declined to yield to enable the Speaker to clear the table of Senate bills.

Mr Crisp raised the question of consideration against the conference report stating that while he was willing to give precedence to appropriation bills he would antagonize any other measure with the contested election case.

The House determined, yeas 134 nays 93 to consider the conference report. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table and discussion ensued upon the adoption of the report.

Constitutional features of the bill were discussed by Messrs Oates, Hooker and Caswell. The conference report was agreed to, yeas 168 nays 88.

Mr Springer, of Illinois, presented the conference report on the territorial bill. The bill provides for the admission of the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington. The Territory of Dakota is to be divided on the line of the 7th standard parallel produced due west to the western boundary of the Territory. Delegates elected to the constitutional convention north of this parallel will assemble at Bismarck and those elected south at Sioux Falls. Delegates to the convention will be elected Tuesday following the first Monday of May next and meet July 4th.

It is provided that at the election for delegates to the convention in South Dakota the electors shall vote for and against the Sioux Falls constitution. If a majority is for the constitution the convention shall resubmit to the people of South Dakota for ratification or rejection the constitution framed at Sioux Falls, also articles and propositions separately submitted. If the majority shall be for the constitution, irrespective of the articles separately submitted, the State of South Dakota shall be admitted as a State under said constitution but if the majority of the votes cast shall be against the Sioux Falls constitution it shall be the duty of the convention to form a constitution.

It is made the duty of the President to admit the four new States by proclamation if the constitutions formed are ratified at the election the first Tuesday of October. Each new State is entitled to one Representative in Congress, except South Dakota which is entitled to two.

Section eleven provides that all lands herein granted for educational purposes be disposed of only at public sale, not less than $10 per acre, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school fund. Said lands may be leased for periods of not more than five years in quantities not exceeding one section to any one person or company. Such land shall not be subject to pre-emption, homestead entry or any other entry under the land laws of the United States, but reserved for school purposes only.

All mineral lands are excepted from grants made by the act. The two Dakotas are to be added to Justice Miller's circuit. [illegible] Washington and Montana to [illegible]. The [illegible] of [illegible]

THE SACKVILLE-WEST MATTER.

President Cleveland Transmits the Correspondence to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb 20 The President to-day transmitted to Congress the correspondence relating to the withdrawal of Lord Sackville. It included the letter Mr Bayard sent to Mr West, endorsing his passport. Lord Sackville's acknowledgement of the same, Mr Bayard's letter to Minister Phelps reviewing the case at length, giving the views of the Government on the action of Lord Sackville in reference to the Murchison letter, from which Mr Bayard quotes commenting "It (the letter) declared the writer to be actuated by motives of manifest perfidy to the United States, grossly impugned and aspersed the motives of the President solicited from the official to whom it was addressed, authoritative confirmation or denial of those impugnments and aspersions, upon information that his official relations to this Government supposed to supply this abuse of the confidence he enjoyed."

Extracts from Lord Sackville's

reply to the Murchison letter are given. Continues Mr Bayard "The letter of Lord Sackville is marked 'private.' In relation to this Marquis Salisbury observes 'Private communications, made by an ambassador in good faith, have never I believe, before been made the subject of international complaint.' The precise force or applicability of this observation in the present case is not perceived. Lord Sackville stated that his correspondent, unknown to him request for advice, could not therefore rest upon personal relations of intimacy, duty or confidence. Lord Sackville was applied to in unmistakable terms to interfere in the political affairs of the United States when issues of deep moment were awaiting popular decision.

While the Conditions

then existing did not enter into an offence of Lord Sackville it must be taken into account in estimating the gravity. He was invited to assist his correspondent and many others to abuse and betray the privileges of their citizenship at an important election involving the control of the government itself, not in the interest of that government but wholly in the interest of a foreign government.

The question is simply whether a foreign diplomatic representative shall assume the functions of [illegible] elections in this country. Such usurpation is of itself an intolerable offense."

FIRE RECORD

A California Town Burned Up

SANTA ROSA, Cal, Feb 20 The town of Guerneville with a population of 5 000 was almost entirely burned to-day. The fire started from a defective flue in a hotel and spread rapidly. Several buildings were blown up to check the flames but with no avail. The total loss is estimated at from $300 000 to $400 000.

THE HARTFORD DISASTER

The Loss of Life Believed Overstated

HARTFORD Conn, Feb 20 The work of excavating the Park Central Hotel ruins has been vigorously prosecuted to-day and more effectively than hitherto. No bodies were found beyond those already reported until about 10 o'clock this morning when one was discovered, which from its location close by the safe is undoubtedly that of Night Clerk Perry. At this time the woodwork in which it is imprisoned is being cut away so as to lift it out. A great mass of debris is yet to be overhauled. Many people think that no more bodies will be found as no other persons are reported missing but others expect to find more as the hotel was reported full.

The Injured Doing Well

At the hospital to-day all ten of the patients taken from the ruins are doing as well as could be expected and no serious results are expected with any of them. The funeral of Dwight H Buell the jeweler, was held this morning. Dr and Mrs Gerrin will be buried to-morrow at 11 30 in New Britain.

11 A M —The body supposed to be that of Perry, has been taken to the Morgue.

1 30 P M —There are no developments at the ruins since the recovery of Perry's body. The work of removing the debris is proceeding rapidly. Facts continue to come to light tending to lessen the probable number in the building at the time of the explosion.

At 3 P M two more bodies had been recovered. The impression is gaining ground that the remains of Whiting were entirely burned up. It is now known that a woman apparently uninjured was taken from the ruins immediately after the explosion and carried to the Earl House and supplied with clothing. Later she went away and her name was not ascertained.

The injured at the hospital are all doing well but none of them will probably be discharged for several days.

Walter M Gay, agent of the Higganum Manufacturing Co, complains to-day of pains in the right leg, probably rheumatism caused by immersion in ice cold water for several hours.

Mr Griffi, of Philadelphia, a commercial traveller, has severe pains in one arm at intervals.

Enos James of New York is in a very favorable condition.

The Total Death List Twenty-two

11 30 P M —Medical men are now satisfied that the charred pieces of flesh and bone found near Mrs Whiting are portions of the body of her husband, Andrew F Whiting, actuary of the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company. This makes the dead twenty two, and accounts for all known positively to have been in the building. Nothing has been found since this forenoon.

CRASH IN ST STEPHEN

A Stable Roof Falls In

CALAIS Feb 20 The roof and upper floor of the large wooden building occupied by J F Whitlock & Co as a livery stable in St Stephen N B, fell in last night. Some time ago the horses were removed from the ground floor to the basement and considerable change was made in the building including the removal of a number of supports to the hay loft. It is supposed that the building thus weakened was unable to support the large amount of hay in the loft and snow on the roof. The ground floor withstood the blow, saving the horses. A large number of carriages, coaches sleighs etc, were destroyed. The loss reaches several thousand dollars. The fire department was called out but its services were not needed.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Of Georgetown Jesuit University

WASHINGTON Feb 20 The centennial celebration of the Georgetown Jesuit University. Among the eminent clergymen present at the opening exercises were Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishops Corrigan, of New York, Ryan, of Philadelphia, and Loughlin of Brooklyn, Bishops Bradley, of Manchester, N H, Mahone, of Hartford Ct, Sweeney, of St John, N B, and Rogers, of Chatham, N B. At nine a procession composed of the various bodies of clergy, students cadets and alumni, formed and marched to Trinity church where pontifical mass was celebrated by Cardinal Gibbons. Rev James A Doonan ex President of the university delivered the centennial sermon, in which he reviewed the history of the university during the past century.

The evening programme included an address by Chancellor Rev E H Welch, S J, profession of faith by candidates for theological degrees, and investing candidates with the cap and ring. Among those receiving degrees were Rev A D Beaven, Holyoke, Mass.; Rev. William Stang, Providence, R. I.; Rev. John W. McMahon, Charlestown, Mass. This was followed by a family reception in Coleman Museum and a promenade concert in Gaston Memorial Hall.

LOCAL MATTERS.

There will be a matinee at Andrews' Hall Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

New carpets were put into the Bangor House yesterday by the Atkinson House Furnishing Company.

A crew of woodsmen was sent up river yesterday morning by Mr John Cassidy to work upon Cooper Brook.

Upon the first page of this morning's issue will be found a list of books added to the Public Library from February 11th to the 18th.

The anniversary of Washington's birthday occurs to-morrow and it being a legal holiday there will be no session of the public schools in either city or suburban districts.

The President of the Fifth Maine Regiment Association, Col R C Harmon, of New York, has given a good sum to complete the regimental building at Peak's Island.

The society which gave the Crusade so liberal a donation has been very active in charitable work in this city, not letting the right hand know what the left hand doeth.

The entertainment at Six Mile Falls given by Queen City Grange, Tuesday evening, was fully attended and in every way a success. It consisted of readings, declamations and vocal and instrumental music.

It is possible that the operetta and tragedy given at the Unitarian Memorial Parlors Tuesday evening, will be repeated in a short time, as it was received with so much favor. The ladies are considering the matter.

The Advocates of Christian Fidelity, the young people's society connected with the Essex street church held their monthly business meeting at the home of their pastor, Rev C E Maton Tuesday evening, a large number being present.

The women of St John's Episcopal Church will have a meeting this afternoon with Mrs N H Dillingham on Broadway, to make further arrangements concerning the 'Oriental Parlor' which will be given in Norombega Hall the latter part of April.

The reception to mechanics to-morrow night includes all in our city working at any mechanical employment. One of the interesting features, on the programme is to be the banjo playing by Mr P H Coombs who is probably one of the best in the State.

A very large freight train came down over the Bangor and Piscataquis yesterday to Old Town. It consisted of thirty-one cars, twenty nine of which were heavily loaded with freight. The officers of the road report the freight business to be excellent this winter.

The attention of some of the sportsmen in this city has again been turned to rabbit shooting and on Tuesday and yesterday several of them went into the woods in this vicinity to get a shot at the long eared jumpers. They were quite successful and returned with game bags well filled.

About thirty members of the degree staff of Penobscot Lodge went to Orrington to work two degrees on four candidates in Eureka Lodge, I O O F. There was a large attendance and the working of the degrees which was finely done was finely done, was much enjoyed. After these exercises were over a fine spread of refreshments was partaken of and a delightful evening passed.

The members of Daniel Chaplin Camp, Sons of Veterans are making arrangements for a masked poverty ball to occur on Friday, March 15th, in City Hall. The affair will be made a very pleasant one, and judging from the past events under the auspices of the camp it will be a great success. To-morrow the camp will have a sociable and dance at the residence of Mr C B Orcutt, on Essex street.

It is thought that there will be a large number who will avail themselves of the opportunity afforded to attend the Governor's receptions to-morrow. Persons can go over in the morning or to-day if desired and return to-morrow afternoon after the forenoon reception, or remain to the evening reception, returning on the Pullman after it is over or on the next day as desired, at one fare for the round trip.

Esther M Durgin daughter of Mr and Mrs Frank W Durgin, celebrated her sixth birthday last Saturday and sent neatly printed invitations to all her school mates, numbering over sixty, who attend Miss Nash's school on Division street. They enjoyed themselves as only children of their ages can. It will be a long time before the happy associations of the pleasant occasion will fade from their memories.

The following officers of Bangor Division No 14, Sons of Temperance, have been installed for the present quarter: Dald Boody, W P; Millie Cates W A, Herbert A Fowler, R S, Amanda Taylor, A R S, J Henry Wharff, F S; Mrs J H Wharff T, Thomas Tibbetts, Chaplain, Charles S Merriman Conductor, Nelley Orno A C, Samuel S Kimball, I S, Millie Cates Organist, John S Kimball, D G W P. The regular meeting will be held this evening in Temperance Hall, Exchange Block, second story.

VANDERBILT VANQUISHED. The Kennebec Journal of yesterday tells the following story concerning one of the Maine Central engineers. Last summer when the Vanderbilt car was at Bar Harbor, the manager of the Maine Central sent an engine down there to bring the car to Portland. The run was made in very quick time and at Brunswick the train stopped to take on water. While there, Mr Vanderbilt got out and said to the engineer that he didn't want him to drive so fast. The engineer—the veteran Simpson—looked at him a quarter of a minute and then said "I am running this train under orders from Payson Tucker to be in Portland at 1 07. If you want to stop here all right, if you want to go to Portland get in." He got in.

WOODLAND CLUB. The sixth meet of the Woodland Club at Phillips' Lake yesterday was, as have been the preceding ones, a most thoroughly enjoyable event. A party numbering nearly ninety went on the special train at 2 15 P M, and these with the number who went out on the evening train made a party of over one hundred. The toboggan slide was never in better condition and the weather was all that could be desired. The double runner was a favorite means of conveyance on the toboggan slide, and many enjoyed the snow-shoeing. After an excellent dinner, served in Landlord Goodwin's best manner, the evening was passed in [illegible] sports, followed by dancing [illegible]

A PLEASANT SURPRISE. A very pleasant affair occurred at the residence of Mr Woodman Staples, at the corner of Pond and Hayward streets, last evening, it being a surprise party to Mrs Staples, given by the members of Mrs Staples class in the Universalist Sunday School. Mrs Staples had been invited out to tea in the afternoon and when she returned to her home was much surprised to find a company of between fifty and sixty persons gathered there. Among the number were the members of Mrs Staples Sabbath School class. The evening was enjoyably passed in games, music and conversation, and refreshments of ice cream and cake and coffee were served. A pleasant feature was the presentation to Mrs Staples by the members of her class of a very handsome bronze and vase. Mrs Furbush acted as spokesman and Mrs Staples responded feelingly. The affair was very pleasant to all present.

ENTERTAINMENT AND SUPPER. A very pleasant entertainment and supper was given at the West Bangor chapel Tuesday evening for the benefit of the society. There was a large number present, and quite a good amount was cleared from the affair. The programme of the entertainment was as follows: Selection by a quartette composed of Mrs H C Stevens Mrs F B Denio, Mr J E Hazeltine and Mr W A Palmer, song, Mr Alfred McKusick, reading Mr Young of the Theological Seminary, song, Mr McKusick, reading, Mr Young, song, Mr W A Palmer. The hearty applause that was given each selection showed that they were well rendered and enjoyed by the hearers. At the conclusion of the entertainment refreshments, consisting of oysters, cake coffee and ice cream, were served and appreciated by those who partook. The occasion was a success throughout and the members of the society feel well repaid for their efforts.

COMPLIMENTARY NOTICE. The many friends in this city of Mr George S Mayo formerly of Hampden, now General Manager of the Ocala (Florida) Company, of which Gen Joshua L Chamberlain is President, and also Treasurer of the Florida International and Semi-Tropical Exposition, now open at Ocala will be pleased to read the following complimentary notice from the Ocala Banner, of the 13th instant: "In referring to the interesting and instructive sketch of the improvements and growth of Silver Spring Park during the past year, of which reference is made in these columns, it is but proper that we should say that much of its prosperity and advancement is due to Mr G S Mayo, the General Manager of the Silver Spring Park Land Company and a large individual owner, who has demonstrated what energy and work will do to make the wilderness blossom as the rose. In the beautiful and elegant home he has created in the thriving suburb, of which he is a prominent citizen and takes a most lively interest in every movement that will assist in beautifying adorning and making its prosperity and growth permanent."

THE BOYS' UNION. The meeting for boys yesterday afternoon, at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms was one of the largest of the season there being fifty seven present. Mr Edgar T Brown gave them a most interesting and helpful talk on true courage. After giving them incidents in the life of Blondin, the tight rope performer, Sam Patch and others of like character, allowing that they might have courage yet it was of a kind that did not make the world any better. He then gave them most graphic incidents showing what true courage was, a kind that perhaps cost something, but went to improve the individual and the world. The brief talk by Mr Brown was followed by an entertainment, musical and literary programme, in which the following took part: Miss May Ayer, Miss Grace Chatman, Miss Marcia Kimball and Mr George M Brown, all of whom fully sustained their good reputation. The use of the gymnasium and boys games in the recreation room, filled up the remainder of a happy and well spent afternoon. A committee from the Ladies' Auxiliary furnished the programme.

MONUMENT TO THE THOREAU FAMILY. Some of the friends in this city of the Thoreau family, now extinct, which includes the renowned author, Henry D Thoreau, have just had a monument made at the establishment of Fletcher & Butterfield to be placed over the family lot at Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Concord, N H, that city so celebrated for the contributions to literature of her sons and daughters. The base of the monument has already been sent to Concord and set up in position, and the remainder will go on next week. Mr Fletcher will go in charge of it and see that it is properly arranged. The monument is of Maine granite with rough finish on the rear and edges with the top beveled and the front polished. It consists of a base fifteen inches in height and two feet and eleven inches wide, and a tablet three feet and eight inches in height, two feet and eight inches wide, and fifteen inches thick. Upon the base is "Thoreau" in large full relief letters. Upon the tablet is the following inscription: "John Thoreau born Oct. 8th, 1787 died Feb 3d, 1858, Cynthia D his wife, born May 23d, 1787, died March 12th, 1872, John Thoreau, Jr, born 1815, died Jan 11th, 1842, Helen L Thoreau, born Oct 22nd 1812, died June 14th 1849, Henry D Thoreau, born July 12th, 1817 died May 6th, 1862, Sophia E Thoreau born June 24th, 1819, died Oct 7th, 1876." The latter died in this city. The monument is handsome, appropriate and substantial and is a fitting mark of the grave of this family.

PENOBSCOT RIVER ICE.

The Operations this Season.

A Very Large Harvest of Splendid Ice.

The latest advices from the Hudson river state that it does not look as if much more ice can be harvested there this season, as the last thaw has put it practically out of the question. There has been gathered only a small crop and that of rather thin ice. This state of affairs naturally calls attention to the crop that will be harvested this season on the Penobscot and an approximate idea can now be arrived at as to the amount that the crop will make. Some of the companies have already stopped work, and the others will probably finish this week, as they will then have in all they intend to cut this year. All of the ice companies have been at work this year and the following tables give the approximate extent of the operations and the amount unsold and sold.

Ice has sold in this city this winter at prices ranging from $1 00 to $1 50, and our dealers hope to get for what is unsold from $1 50 to $2 00.

The prospects of a poor yield on other rivers where it is customary to obtain a large amount and on the Hudson, caused our dealers to make preparations to cut an unusually large amount to supply the demand that must naturally follow when there is a scarcity and with that end in view the Arctic, E & I K Stetson, Dirigo Penobscot, Sargents, Union and Kineo, added to the capacity of their houses before and while cutting was going on that they might be in readiness to receive a large amount of ice. All of the additional room has been or will be filled up, and considerable ice will be stacked. Quite an amount was left over from last season and this with what will be harvested this season gives the dealers a good amount with which to supply the market whenever the demand comes.

Most of the companies began cutting on or soon after the first day of February, and will have been engaged in the work when it is completed, just about the same length of time as last year. During the month very large crews of men and many horses have been employed, the number being more than usual on account of the enlarging and constructing of new buildings for holding the ice and considerable lumber has been used for the purpose. The river has been a very busy scene this season and the work has been pushed on the pleasant days so that as much advantage as possible might be taken of the favorable conditions for getting in a good crop. On the whole it has been a good month for the work as but comparatively few days were such as to compel the crews to quit harvesting and in this respect it is better than last, which was extremely unfavorable.

The scraping had to be done the first thing this season before any cutting could be done, and it had to be followed up after each snow storm of the winter, but the expense has been but ordinary and less than last year. The anchor ice has created some trouble in the upper fields, but it did not appear below the field of E & I K Stetson, who were the most hindered by it.

The ice which has been obtained by all the companies is of splendid quality, being clear and blue, freed from impurities and averaging fifteen inches in thickness. It is of course, gratifying to the dealers to obtain such a fine crop and it is probable that there will be plenty of trade in this line the coming season, judging from the scarcity elsewhere and the amount already sold. These operations are to business in many different ways and a large amount of money is put in circulation not only in this city and vicinity, but in other localities and States. It is safe to state that each of the companies has paid $1 000 a week for labor upon the ice while those who have made additions to their houses have expended considerable more. Probably at least $50 000 has been put in circulation among the laboring classes and many have been given employment who otherwise would find it somewhat difficult to find anything to do during the winter months, or at least to get as much wages as are paid by the ice companies.

The industry is an important one to this city, and unlike that in some other places, is controlled entirely by Bangor citizens, instead of outside companies. The season has been a satisfactory one to all the dealers who while they have been obliged to put out a very large amount to secure their harvest of ice, feel that they will be repaid at some time if not largely at least a fair profit.

The Katahdin Ice Company will commence the last of this week or the first of next harvesting the crop for the Maine Central Railroad Company. They will cut between 1,000 and 1,200 tons, to be distributed along the line of the road, and will load the cars on the main track at their ice houses.

AMUSEMENTS

Frank Daniels in 'Little Puck.'

The popular comedian, Mr Frank Daniels, supported by a strong company will play "Little Puck" this evening at the Opera House, and there has been a good sale of seats for the performance, which is expected to be a very amusing one. In the new piece Mr Daniels impersonates the dual role of a Wall street broker and his wayward son. The broker tires of the business cares and longs to be a boy again, while the son pines to be a man and go on the Stock Exchange. By the means of a "hoodoo" idol the father, and son are transformed from one to the other and their complexion [illegible] evening, and Gounod's "Faust" on Thursday. These works will bring out the full strength of the company, which numbers eighty persons. The principals are as follows: Sopranos—Louis Natali, Alida Varena, Cora Meacham, Fanny Gonzales; contraltos—Clara Poole, Lizzie Macnichol; tenors—Charles Bassett, William Castle, Thomas Ebert, baritones and bassos—Alonzo Stoddard, Franz Vetta, E N Knight, S Langelois, Frank Pieri, Harry Warren. A large orchestra, chorus and ballet under the leadership of Gustav Hinrichs, will also be a feature. It is expected that crowded houses will greet this fine company. The sale of seats will begin to-morrow morning instead of Saturday as at first intended, on account of the great demand that is expected.

Bangor District Ministerial Association at Brewer—Closing Day

A morning prayer meeting was conducted by the Rev. W H Dunnack, of Exeter.

At 9 o clock the president took the chair and called to the platform Rev J Tinling, who delivered a carefully prepared paper on the following subject, 'How far Can a Man Work Out His Own Salvation?' An essay on the same subject was furnished by the Rev A Prince. Also one written by the Rev J W Burrows, was read by Rev Mr Wentworth.

Rev W Baldwin, of Winterport, read a brief but interesting paper on "The Conversion of Children and the Best Method of Instructing Them." At this point, the place for the next meeting was determined. Invitations were received from Searsport, Clinton, and Union street, Bangor, the association voted to hold its next meeting with the church in Searsport.

Rev Mr Lewis announced the tidings of the revival now in progress at the Orono M E church.

The next topic was taken up and a finely written paper was read on "Hygiene for the Clergy," by the Rev A J Lockhart of East Corinth.

The quartette sang a pleasing selection entitled "The Two Paths." The closing topic was "How Can We Render Our Ministerial Associations Most Profitable?" Papers were read by Revs Clifford and Pearson, in which the following points were very strongly emphasized:

1 Prompt attendance of every preacher in the district.

2 Holding the sessions where the annual conference is never held.

3 The appointment of a personal critic.

4 A readiness to write upon the topic assigned by the executive committee.

5 The attendance of the preachers until the close of the meeting of the association.

Rev W L Brown was requested to read a paper written by him, but not for this meeting. The subject of his paper was "Common Sense Preaching," and was much enjoyed. A most excellent paper on "How to Save Souls" was read by Rev S F Pape, of Bradford.

Thirty ministers have attended this session of the association and the universal feeling is that this meeting is one of the best ever held in the district. The entertainment furnished by the Brewer church has been most generous and hospitable.

The closing remarks were made by Revs Arey, Frohock, Jewell and Nanton, of the Bucksport district and Rev Mr Merrill, of the Congregational church.

After the usual vote of thanks to the Brewer Society and pastor the records were read and the association adjourned with the benediction by Rev A Prince.

THE WASHINGTON BUILDING ASSOCIATION—A SPLENDID SHOWING MADE FOR THE PAST SIX MONTHS. The Morning Globe, Tacoma, W T, says:

The meeting of this association took place at the company's office, Monday evening, for the re-election of officers and winding up of the business for the past year. The report of the Secretary was very flattering, and shows a clear profit of $6,825 for the association, on the $30 000 subscribed since September 29, 1888, when the first purchase of property was made. In view of this splendid showing the association voted that the capital stock be increased $40 000 at once. The Secretary was authorized to declare a dividend among the stockholders of 10 per cent. "Six years ago I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had a cough, night sweats, bleeding of the lungs, pains in chest and sides, and was so completely prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions without benefit, my physician finally determined to give me Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I seemed to rally from the first dose of this medicine, and after using only three bottles, am now as well and sound as ever."—Rodney Johnson, Springfield, Ill.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 5, 1888.

I have suffered with sick headaches since childhood and for the last two years they have been more frequent and severe until I had them every week. In cold weather it was a constant companion. A friend who has received relief by the use of Compound Oxygen insisted that I should try it. So, while suffering with one of my headaches, I called at your office and you gave me a treatment. This is over two months ago, and I have not had one of my headaches since. As I have taken no medicine I attribute it to Compound Oxygen. I never before found anything that would give me any relief.

"What a singular odor!" soliloquized Miss Holcum, snuffing the air with a slight tremor of disgust about her nostrils.

She said odor instead of smell, because she was a teacher of several years' standing in one of the common schools of New York and had learned in the exercise of her profession to express herself with an elegance of the Johnsonian species. She was accustomed to remark to her scholars, "Before you speak, always consider not only your thoughts, but also the language in which you propose to give them utterance."

She was at this moment ascending the third staircase of the cheap, plain and even seedy lodging house in which she had her parlor—bedroom—kitchen—in other words her one room, in which she studied, slept and did such small cooking as was needed for her tea and breakfast. In this simple fashion she had lived for years, not merely because her earnings were small and not at all because she was stingy, but mainly because she was a noble, unselfish woman, who had it at heart to educate a youthful orphan cousin.

"It is burning charcoal," she added after an instant. "Can it be that some poor mortal is seeking his death?"

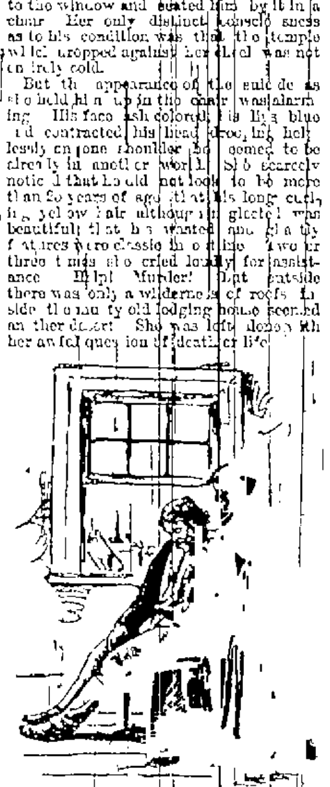

School teaching alone had not given her the wisdom to reach this suspicion. She was a reader of novels; she had an imagination and a native longing after the unusual; she was capable of conceiving a suicide and of conceiving herself as saving him. Where a practical common sense man would merely have smelt fire, this fanciful, impulsive woman scented a tragedy of the kind. We shall see which of these two characters best suited the exigency that was now agonizing in this bare and musty old lodging house. The wildest imagination is sometimes the truest common sense.

It may be that a young foreigner thought Janet Holcum. She ran up another flight of stairs, turned along a musty dusky passage and stopped before a door marked by dingy fingers. Timorous and modest, she looked at it with her heart as well as anxiety, but the charcoal fumes were stronger here, and began to make her sick and faint; she felt that she could not be there long. After rapping and receiving no answer, she put her mouth to the keyhole and called, also without effect.

Oh, dear! what shall I do? she groaned, confident now that a tragedy was passing within and looking about her vainly for help. She had already learned that this fifth story was unoccupied except by the pale, slovenly, haggard young foreigner whose step she had frequently heard pacing to and fro for hours over her head. Also she remembered that he was a man, and that she had never been introduced to him; she thought of running down stairs and summoning some other man to save him. But the poisonous air demanded instant action. She tried the lock unavailingly, and then flung herself desperately against the door, the miserable bolt catch gave way, and she was within. Unable to breathe in the mephitic atmosphere of the room, she rushed across it, opened a window and thrust her head out. Looking back from this position she saw something which made her shudder.

There was a painter's easel, propped, on it was a picture with its face turned from her; behind the easel, on the floor of one corner of the room, was a wretched bed, and on this the chest and bench concealed by the picture, lay the motionless form of a man. The moment Janet had drawn one long breath of the outer air, she hastened to this terrible corner. No time to look at the man, no leisure to query whether he were alive or dead; she lifted him by the shoulders, dragged him to the window and seated him by it in a chair. Her only distinct consciousness as to his condition was that the temple which dropped against her head was not entirely cold.

But the appearance of the suicide as she held him up in the chair was alarming. His face ash colored, his lips blue and contracted, his head drooping heavily on one shoulder, he seemed to be already in another world. She scarcely noticed that he could not look to be more than 30 years of age, that his long curling yellow hair, although in disorder, was beautiful, that he was handsome and that his features were classic in outline. Two or three times she cried loudly for assistance. "Help! Murder!" But outside there was only a wilderness of roofs. Inside, the many old lodging house seemed an empty desert. She was left alone with her awful question of death or life.

She was left alone with her awful question of death or life.

Presently her enigma responded. The response was only a sigh, but it came from the side of the tomb. It was the triumph of nature over supernature, the kiss of a soul returning from the shades. The man was already breathing, and it was not long before he opened his eyes. Into these eyes Janet sent her sweetest and most pitiful smile, looking thereby to encourage the sick and sorrowful spirit within. Not a word was uttered, for the one was as yet too ill to speak and the other felt that here was a misery too profound to be questioned. After awhile, seeing that her patient could hold up his head, Janet hastened to the pan of charcoal which was still burning and deluging it with water from a pitcher, extinguished its poisonous embers. When she returned to the window the invalid looked in her face with so much intelligence that she ventured to address him.

"You will be better soon," she said. "The air of the room is becoming purified. It was that charcoal which made you ill."

"Yes, it was to charcoal," replied the young man, with a marked German accent.

"I hope that you will be more careful about it in future," she continued, believing that she was talking to a would be suicide, but not quite certain of it.

"I subbose so," was the weak voiced, indifferent, non committal answer.

She looked anxiously into the fine face which was now beginning to reassume somewhat of its natural color and beauty.

"If you are suffering under any trouble," she said, "I trust and desire that you will tell me of it. Perhaps I can aid you."

"I haf but one drubble," he replied. "It is life."

Wicked as the sentiment seemed to her, the man who uttered it did not seem wicked, but only pitiable. In the quivering droop of his lip and in the fixed but unseeing stare of his blue eyes, there was a profound anguish and a calm desperation which made her think of the unsounded, motionless waters of the Dead sea covering ruined cities. She had never before seen such sorrow; at least she had never before seen sorrow expressed with such frankness and the spectacle impressed her the more terribly because of its novelty.

The youth now rose, steadied himself with difficulty, rubbed his forehead and his eyes, struck his hand repeatedly on the back of his neck, obviously confused, dizzy and in pain. Janet felt that feminine delicacy ordered her to leave him, but she did not dare, lest he should rekindle his charcoal. Turning away her eyes, to gain time for reflection, she found herself near the easel, and ... the picture. ... [illegible] ...

perceive that, as she thought, it beautifully done. Of a sudden it occurred to her womanly wit and sensibility that here was something whereby she might gain a hold upon this victim of despair, and draw him back to a willingness to live.

"Did you do this?" she asked. "Are you a painter?"

His face brightened the merest trifle as he caught her look of interest.

"Yes, I am a bainter," he answered.

"Let me turn it to the light for you," he added with a courtesy of manner strangely at variance with his coarse and over dirty clothing. "You see it is not vinished yet." He went on looking kindly at her, as if he detected her ignorance of art and pitied her for it.

"I know the place," she said, forcing a smile of encouragement. "I have had the pleasure of visiting it. How well you have represented it!"

"So you haf peen there?" he replied with just the faintest possible smile of gratification. "It is a peautiful spot."

"Why don't you sell it?"

"What! sell it so? It is not vinished."

"Then why don't you finish it?" she added, trembling with anxiety to make him promise to do so.

"I haf not time," he said, his gloom returning.

"Oh, but you have time," she urged eagerly. "You shall have time."

He eyed her meditatively, earnestly and solemnly, as if querying whether he should tell her his miserable story. While he hesitated this excellent Janet Holcum was praying in her heart that heaven would guide him toward goodness and safety.

"See here," he said at last. "I will dell you something. You haf saved my life. I will dell you why I wanted to die. I had no money. I could not get food. I could not bay for my room. I had had drubbles bevore—over in Chermany. Und now I had not a cent in my bocket. So at last I tires out und I gives it up. I lights my charcoal and I lies down to sleep it out. That is my shtory."

In spite of his strong German accent he was sublime and terrible and pitiable. The tears rushed into Janet's eyes and stepping suddenly forward she caught both his hands as if she would prevent him by force from again attempting his life.

"I thank you," was the simple response of a man who, sensibility and quickness, enabled him to understand and sympathize, which had not been uttered.

"You must not do this again," she urged as soon as she could speak. "I will see that you have friends. You shall have time to finish your picture. I will help you sell it. Have you eaten today?"

"I haf no abbedide."

She understood that he had not eaten and the tears shone in her eyes again.

"Come down to my room," she said. "You must! You can take some tea at any rate. Come down and sit with me at least while I eat."

"I am obliged," he answered as he followed her. "But you must excuse my abbearance," he added, glancing at his ragged clothing, stained with grease and daubed with paint. "I am not fit for the gombany of a lady."

"I am only a poor school mistress," she smiled. "And in you I can respect the artist."

He bowed with a courteous grace which gave him the air of a gentleman in spite of his wretched raiment.

Arrived in her little parlor bedroom with this strange companion Janet Holcum's heart fluttered. It was the first time that a man had been with her there alone. If visitors should arrive what would they think? Of course it would be impossible to explain that here was a gentleman whom she had caught trying to commit suicide and whom she had undertaken to cure of his self destroying propensities by means of tea and sympathy. Moreover, what would this man himself think of her? She was squeamish about situations such as this one—a fact which she had not hitherto dared to mention—well, she was squeamish, because she was an old maid.

It is curious but none the less true that a woman of 35 is usually more fastidious about appearances and even about realities than a girl of 19. In life long meditations, perhaps some dangers avoided, perhaps some scandals innocently incurred, a habit of life which has become a governing motive are the explanations of this singular phenomenon. Well, Janet Holcum, being 35 years old, blushed and was troubled at the thought of being alone with this handsome man of 25, although he might be looked upon as little more than a ghost returned from beyond the grave. Presently her natural good sense, strength, ened by a perfect uprightness of heart, came to her support.

"Pshaw," she thought, "I am old enough to be his aunt. Besides I am saving him from death. Let who will blame me, I am doing my duty."

Having had lunch that day she had proposed to go without dinner and consequently she had slight provision for a meal. She might have run out to make purchases, but she was afraid to leave her Tartar to himself for the present and, moreover, haste seemed to be more important than plenty. She lighted her gas stove, got her tea to drawing and set out a store of graham crackers, butter and cheese. Then followed a moderate repast and a conversation which lasted well into the evening.

Drawn out by sympathy the guest told his whole story. His name he stated was Ernst Rudolf Hartmann and he was the youngest son of an official in the civil service of Prussia. Carried away by the liberal ideas so common among European students he had attached himself after leaving the University of Berlin to a secret club of republicans whose object was to substitute a democracy for the Hohenzollerns. The club had been ferreted out by the police. Ernst and two or three other members had been condemned to a brief imprisonment; moreover he had been disinherited and disowned by his father, a furious loyalist. Worst of all a beautiful girl to whom he was betrothed had during his confinement been driven or coaxed into a marriage with some old baron. This last sorrow, which he related with childlike candor and simplicity, made Janet Holcum blush to her ears even while her heart throbbed with pity.

When he rose to return to his room he appeared to be at least temporarily reconciled to the struggle of life.

"I will dry it a leetle longer, if you will gif me a hand," he said. "I will go to bainting again."

"Oh, how can you talk of it so coolly!" she exclaimed with heartfelt solemnity and even with horror. "Don't you know that what you have done today is very wicked? Forgive me!" she added in sudden remembering how miserable he had been, and looking with pity at his wasted face. By the way, she talked very little of her Johnsonese to this man, for in the first place she supposed that he, being a foreigner, might not understand it and secondly she had to be so earnest with him that only the simplest words seemed suitable.

"What could I do?" he asked. "A gentleman may not be a beggar. Besides I was not a bainter at home. Mein faders were to make of me a banker. Bainting was merely my fancy. I had no hope of success in it. What could I do?"

"Will you promise to come to take breakfast with me?"

"I bromise—upon my honor."

"Remember, now—upon your honor! Good night."

He took her hand and before she could guess what he meant to do he kissed it. Notwithstanding the perfect simplicity of his manner, notwithstanding that the action was obviously a mere expression of civility and gratitude, Janet Holcum, who had never before had her hand kissed, blushed again until it seemed to her that her hair was turning scarlet. Without noticing her confusion, this ragged gentleman said sweetly "Good night," and bowed himself out of the room.

ECONOMICAL BAKING POWDER

A curious housekeeper of experience recently made a careful practical test of the comparative baking value of a large number of the baking powders in the market, including those of low and high cost. She found that twenty five cents worth of Horsford's Bread Preparation raised more flour and produced much better results than the same money's worth of the cheap adulterated powders and also than it took fifty cents worth of the ordinary high cost baking powders to raise the same quantity of flour. From this she concluded that it was more economical to use the Horsford's than the low priced adulterated powders and the product was much better. We commend a trial of this experiment by our lady friends.
